

Natasha Hill is the current chair of the Weyburn Arts Council and is seeking Nomination for a Director's position with the OSAC Board.

Since taking over the Chair position with Weyburn Arts Council, Natasha has implemented many governance policies to streamline Council's administration time. Previous experience as President of the SE Unit of the Canadian Cancer Society and sitting on Federal Public Issues committees has provided Natasha with insight to operations and fundraising, which has been easily adapted to her work with the Arts Council.

Having been Chair through the pandemic, Natasha played a large part in bringing the Weyburn Arts Council's digital content to the forefront. Working with a dynamic Council, new education projects and public outdoor murals have been the recent focus of WAC.

Natasha manages the social media for her husband's band and has years of experience dealing with the live music scene. She owns a bath and body company as well as instructing classes at a local art studio.

Natasha lives in Weyburn with her husband, Roger. Her two adult children also live in the community.
